Parents and Families, please enjoy the read of Part 3 to the Christian Culture Newsletter Series - In the Home

Part 3: Parents and Children

Scripture shows us that God has designed each family member in such a way that as each fulfills his duty, all are provided for, respected, and loved. In this third article of my In the Home newsletter series, we will consider the biblical mandate to raise children and the duties of fathers, mothers, and children in that mandate.

Fatherhood

When Scripture gives a single command to fathers, mothers, or children, that command often expresses the central purpose of that calling. St. Paul gives one direct command to fathers in Ephesians 6: “Fathers, do not provoke your children to wrath, but bring them up in the training and admonition of the Lord.” (Ephesians 6:4)

This teaches that fathers must admonish, that is, teach their children the Word of Christ, and train, that is, discipline them according to it. Children need teaching and discipline because, as Solomon writes, “Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child.” (Proverbs 22:15) This may sound harsh in a world that pictures children as innocent and pure, but Scripture teaches that children are born sinful and naturally desire foolishness. Therefore Paul says, “bring them up in the training and admonition of the Lord.” (Ephesians 6:4)

Admonition is best carried out through daily family devotions. As the spiritual head of his home, the father is responsible to shepherd the souls of his children by reading God’s Word with them and praying together. He teaches the Scriptures so that they may remain Christians throughout their lives.

Fathers are also responsible to discipline their children. They punish sin and reward obedience and virtue. Solomon writes, “the rod of correction will drive foolishness far from him.” (Proverbs 22:15) This is not always easy, but because they love their children, fathers willingly discipline them so that they may learn what is good.

Discipline also opens the door to the Gospel. After a child sins, the father calls him to repentance and then speaks gentle comfort: “I forgive you.” These words soothe the child’s soul, show true love, and teach the child about the forgiveness of Christ.

Motherhood

St. Paul does not give a single verse summarizing motherhood, but Proverbs 31 devotes an entire chapter to the “excellent wife.” It reveals a vital purpose of her calling: “She rises while it is yet night and gives food to her household...” (Proverbs 31:15)

“She looks well to the ways of her household and eats not the bread of idleness.” (Proverbs 31:27)

The excellent wife sustains her family; she provides for them. The mother is the life source of the home. Psalm 128 says the blessed family is one in which the mother is like a fruitful vine and the children are like olive shoots around her table. (Psalm 128:3) Eve, the first woman, was named “Life” because she was the mother of all living. (Genesis 3:20)

The mother is designed to bear, nurture, and care for new life. She gathers the home together and cares for her children so that they may go out into the world vibrant and full of life.

Childhood

Ephesians 6:1 says, “Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right.”

Today the vocation of children is often overlooked or misunderstood. Many think the purpose of childhood is to discover and prepare for a career. But this is not the biblical purpose of childhood. Children are given a different duty: they are called to obey their parents. This command fits their vocation because it trains them to become virtuous adults.

The Fourth Commandment states:

“Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long upon the land which the Lord your God is giving you.” (Exodus 20:12)

Notice whom this command benefits: the children! God gives parents authority and commands children to honor them so that this authority may be used to bless, care for, and provide for the child. What a beautiful design!

Obedience is also good for parents. A child’s obedience allows parents to teach, to guide, and to protect. Scripture is clear that obedience does not simply end at a certain age, though it changes in form as children mature. Adult children repay their parents with care in the time when they age (1 Timothy 5:4)

This mandate to honor and obey parents, gives children clarity in their vocation. It turns their hearts away from self-pleasure and toward honoring authority and receiving God’s love through their parents.

Thanks be to God for designing each family member so that all are provided for. I encourage you all to continue to delight in His Law and walk according to Holy Scripture and the created order.

Thanks be to God for His beautiful design!

In Christ,
Headmaster Swigart
